

Natalie Stahl is a fifth generation Arizona native and was raised in Thatcher, Arizona. She attended high school in Tucson and Phoenix, and graduated with degrees in marketing and merchandising from Northern Arizona University.

Natalie is married to Scott Stahl, who is a Glendale police officer. They are the parents of two young daughters, Brailey and Landrie.

Natalie is the owner and proprietor of a wedding and reception venue, Virginia's House, and continues to restore the 1913 Victorian home that both her business and her family. Virginia's House has been featured on HGTV's Restore America and provides a facility for weddings and other special events.

Natalie founded the Orchard Glen Neighborhood Partnership in 1999. She has held positions on a wide spectrum of commissions, boards and organizations. She was the vice chair for Glendale's Commission on Neighborhoods, a member of the City Center Master Plan Citizens Advisory Committee, chairperson for Orchard Glen Weed & Seed, a member of Arizona Crime Prevention Association, a part of the planning team for the Earned Income Tax Credit Coalition, the Glendale Police Department's Use of Force Board, and president of the Northwest Women's Network. She currently sits on Glendale's Planning and Zoning Commission. She is also the recipient of the 2005 Volene Stockham Humanitarian of the Year Award.

Natalie is the driving force behind the partnerships and strategic direction of the Orchard Glen Weed & Seed Initiative. Her neighborhood has received numerous grants for a widely varied array of projects ranging from streetscaping improvements to demolition and design work for neighborhood beautification.

Natalie resides and owns a business in the Orchard Glen area of historic Glendale.